Stanford University

We heard a lot of feedback around the value, and sometimes the difficulties, of interactions within the community and with mentors/staff. While the forums are a good place to organize class related conversations we wanted to offer something real time and “off the record”, just like you would get at any university chatting with your classmates outside of class.

With that in mind we’d like to introduce Slack to the TE experience. Slack is a mobile friendly messaging app through which you will be able to access a course-wide room and easily talk to all the students in the class. You will also be able to create your own separate team room.

With teaching staff and mentors dropping in, you will have an opportunity to discuss your problems in real time as well as to exchange your venture ideas and chat about what’s happening in the entrepreneurial world.

For those continuing on your journey from TE1 (especially if you’re taking TE2 starting on April 13th), Slack will be your always available go-to place to get ongoing support for your startup project.

To ensure the quality of the conversation Slack TE is invite only with selection criteria revolving around commitment shown and grades (no freeloaders!). If you'd like to join please apply here:

The TE community is looking forward to chat with you!
