

Stanford University

Technology Entrepreneurship

powered by Home Lectures Assignments Community ▾

KW ▾

Forum > General > General Discussion > brainstorming slides and does course make sense for me?

brainstorming slides and does course make sense for me? Edit Delete

brainstormingSlidesAndThisCourse x

Tag1 , Tag2

Unsubscribe

KW

Karen West

Posted 4 days ago.

0

Hi, I will submit my "brainstorming" slides today. I chatted with someone on the discussion forum yesterday about one idea, and I'll share that there as one case that probably will not work for this class.

This week, I hope to determine whether or not this class makes sense for me to take, since I have already taken and done well in an entrepreneur class last semester. However, that class did not work in groups together or come up with a business plan for an idea, but was more educational in nature and we spent time evaluating ecosystems for start ups, and interviewing people from within our own ecosystem others.

So this week I hope to determine whether this course makes sense for me, since to join someone's team you have to have the right skill set and background to be a good fit for it.

Thanks and good luck to everyone.

Karen

Reply☒ Resolved ☐ Unresolved

Replies

Veronica Chiaravalli

Posted about 3 hours ago.

0

Hi Karen,

Stick around and to the end! I DO think everything makes sense!

We have mentors. Contact them when you have questions.

Share your feedback to make the course better.

Do not give up!!!!

Brainstorming can become something fun actually. It's something you can apply anywhere.

Regards,

Veronica C.

CommentKW Karen West less than a minute ago.

Thanks Veronica! That helps. So far, I am sticking it out. I have ruled out one of the brainstorming projects though. The only thing that would prevent me from sticking it out, is if I suddenly received a job offer AND it interfered with sticking it out, which sometimes jobs do not allow any extra time after work, and sometimes they do. But no job offer has happened yet, so I continue on! Who knows, maybe a start up situation could work out rather than finding a full time job and considering a start up on the side type thing, who knows! I appreciate your enthusiasm!! ;-)

Giving up in life has never been an option for me. During tough times I've told myself, unless you are dead, never let tough times break your fun spirit and energy to do things in life. So no- you will not see me give up unless a higher priority came up in my life--you have to first be responsible to support your family!

My husband is the sole breadwinner right now so I'm trying to change that! Thank you for your comment. Brainstorming was fun,I but I'm not sure what the responses will be to mine!
;-)

Karen

Edit

| | |
|-------------|--------|
| Format ▾ | Source |
|  | |

Reply